SARAH FAITH is a Nashville-based artist/songwriter originally from Michigan. She draws inspiration from a diverse music background to make a sound of her own - classic rock, americana, and country music have all played a role in shaping Sarah as an artist and writer. Her warm, soulful vocal tone delivers songs written about close-to-the-heart true stories and she carries an energy that can only be described as contagious.

Sarah's love of songwriting began when she was very young. She would journal and write poetry, using ink and paper as a tool to cope with her difficult childhood. Sarah has always felt that writing is one of the best ways to make sense of her life. Her mother lost a life-long battle to alcoholism in February 2017, which has been used to fuel many of Sarah's songs - her trump card in songwriting is her vulnerability.

Sarah aims to show her audience that she is living proof of a bold choice to change a family legacy and a firm stance to turn imperfect circumstances into light and hope.
